Sailboat

Sailboats are in the distinct minority in the Meriden Power Squadron. However, the sailors are a very skilled and vocal group! Despite the low number of sailboats, the venue is alive and well. Many power boaters have sailing backgrounds and some active sailors have extensive sailing experience in the Long Island Sound waters, including racing experience on larger boats. If you are interested in learning about sail boats and how they handle, take the Power Squadron Sail course taught by one of our own racing sailors. The course is a must for every power boater.

Sailors often travel to the southern waters and charter boats to explore places like the Bahamas or the British Virgin Islands. (Membership in the United States Power Squadrons can actually be a plus when qualifying for a charter.)

Our District holds a fun sail race, when enough boats can be found to enter. In recent years it has not been held due to lack of boats, maybe this will be the year!
